Ideas to engage your teams and boost morale

A strong workplace culture has quickly become more important than ever before. Whether your teams are used to remote working, or being a part of a virtual team is completely new to them, the value of bringing a team together should never be underestimated.

Our virtual team building solutions

Our virtual team building solutions will benefit your team by helping them to:

- Keep motivated, focused and productive
- Build a stronger workplace culture
- Heighten communication, engagement and team morale
- Collaborate to achieve a common goal.

These are just a few of the reasons why we've put together a list of great virtual team builds to help bring your teams closer together, regardless of where they are working. Here's a few ideas to connect your team in a virtual world:

The virtual escape room

The aim of the game is – who can solve the puzzles and escape first? Regardless of the video conferencing solution you have, there will be different rooms available, and attendees can share screens and compete in a fun competition within their team, aiming to become the champions by escaping the rooms in the fastest time.

As a team, your attendees would have a mixture of tasks, challenges, puzzles and riddles to solve to earn clues and successfully unlock each escape room's door. As a result, your team/s will have collaborated with each other and learnt new things about their colleagues, helping them to feel part of a wider team, encouraging useful business discussions, and ultimately helping to boost team morale.

This can also be a tailored experience, developed to include your company brand, values, key messages, and more.

A virtual "Who's Who"?

Well, for this team build, the question is, how well do you really know your colleagues? It's a real opportunity for attendees to get to know their teammates even better than they did before!

Each player is asked a few fun questions to create an "identity"; 1 of 16 pre-determined fun 'tongue in cheek' game characters. The goal is to then find as many colleagues as possible amongst the "characters" within the allotted time. With bonus points being awarded for finding 'Soul Mates' (perfect matches) as well as your complete opposites.

Armed with the contact details of all participating colleagues, how quickly can your team members contact them? What means of communication will they use? Once contacted, each team member will find their unique game code which throws up a random question about them that your team has to answer correctly to earn points. Each team member then has 90 seconds to find out as much about their other team members as they can!

So, whether there are two of your team members playing or 1000+, the clock starts when you start your game. Time shows no favouritism. Who will complete the full set of game characters in the quickest time?

The bigger picture

Give your attendees the opportunity to be a part of a global community project, creating the biggest work of art ever created, and the best bit is, ten percent of all revenue from this team build goes to global charities.

Each team member will be sent a panel from a larger image (a downloadable printable design). The design is a panel that will fit, like matching wallpaper, alongside others. The task is to colour in your panel ensuring the edges match those of the adjoining panels. To do this, participants must communicate with others. Once completed, each panel will be uploaded and placed in the correct position with the resultant image growing daily.

As more and more people participate, the image will grow and grow and grow to become the largest piece of artwork ever created! Plus, it helps connect your attendees, makes them focus on the bigger picture, puts them in a creative mindset, and contributes to their mental health and wellbeing too – colouring in is great for that!

A remote quiz

This is a great way to inject a bit of fun into a team build solution, and it can even be done towards the end of your working week for "Happy Hour" – a great way to end your week on a high!

This remote based quiz can be accessed via a phone, tablet or laptop and includes attendees being split into teams – these teams will then have their own chat room where they can interact with teammates, as well as access to a separate chat channel where all attendees will need to be present for the quick-fire quiz rounds.

The remote team quiz has a multitude of different rounds ranging from sports to TV, and music to general knowledge. Plus, the whole event will be seamlessly run by a fun quiz master who will be streamed through a live video link. This will also include interactive elements so that attendees can engage with the quiz master (as if they were in the same room).

There will also be "quiz markers," tallying all the scores and updating the teams throughout.

At the end of all the rounds the scores are totalled, and the good news is, points do mean prizes!

The remote team anthem

The idea is to unite your teams, remotely, using music! The remote team anthem engages your teams in an interactive song writing session, virtually.

This music-fuelled programme enables you to convey key messaging and core values to your team members anywhere, live and in the moment, and best of all, together. Each online session is led by the same world-class musicians you'll find at a face-to-face team anthem team building session, and these musicians have worked with international stars like Prince, Cher, Drake, Katy Perry, and more!

All you need to do is decide who should attend, and just like that, you'll be creating an original song together, online. Once your team is logged in, the musicians run the show, entertaining your people and guiding the group through chord selection and collaborative lyric writing, which centres on your team's purpose.

Whichever team building solution you choose, we're sure it will help bridge the physical gap between your remote team/s, keeping up team momentum, providing a morale boost, as well as fuelling collaboration and creativity. What's not to love?
